Introduction

A British Educationist, the late F R Marshall of high repute in the field of child education and the development of integrated personality, founded Marshall School in 1967. Being a product of the British Public School System and a close friend of the late Pandit Jawahar Lal Nehru, Mr. Marshall wanted the school to be set up on the lines of a public school to suit Indian conditions. For that reasons, he found Dehra Dun an ideal place, where he made a humble start with only five students. That time, for various reasons and paucity of required funds, this temple of education could not reach its desired size and eminence during his life time. However Mr. Marshall did not fail to find a name as his successor, who surmounting all the difficulties and intrigues of the inheritance, paved the way for a modern spacious and ever growing public institution.

Mr. Marshall's successor, Founder President, Mr G C Juyal, a veteran journalist, orator and environmentalist and social worker, in less than five years after the departure of the late Francis Marshall built the school and gave it the dimensions and strength to be reckoned among the best run public schools in the country. Today Marshall School, a co-educational institution with all possible day-cum-residential facilities is having a strength of over two thousand students. Affiliated to Indian School Certificate Examination New Delhi, Marshall School is divided in two branches-Junior and Senior and has full arrangement and provision for imparting teaching and training from the K G classes to class XII in all the faculties of Science, Commerce and Humanities. Sprawling over a vast 55 bighas of land with separate hostels for girls, boys and small children, it is the only institution with very moderate expenses providing all the necessary needs for developing the integrated personality of a child and a necessary education to take up the challenge of life.

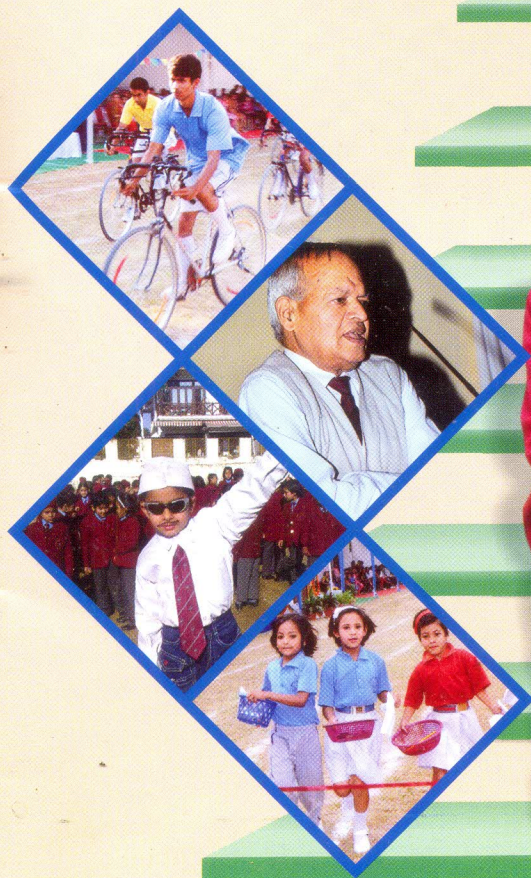

The School has illustrious legacy of its founder's F.R. Marshall and Late Shri G.C. Juyal. Thousands of Children from the School boarding and day school after passing their board classes are placed highly all over the world. The School dedicates itself to fulfill the dreams of Late Shri G.C. Juyal and impart an ambitious program of the school under Rajnish Chandra Juyal (President) and Ratnish Chandra Juyal.

Special coaching and leadership programs for entrance to different competitive fields like Medical, Engineering and National Defence Academy, are conducted for the children studying in Marshall school. The school has a strong alumni who always supports the Alma-Mater.
