"Children are not vessels to be filled, but lamps to be lit"

- Swami Chinmayananda

Chinmaya Mission was an inspiring initiative taken by Pujya Gurudev Swami Chinmayananda in 1951 to continue his legacy on to spreading the Vedantic message of peace and happiness to the modern world. Swami ji worked in this direction for over four decades as a great ascetic of contemporary India. The mission today has 77 Chinmaya Vidyalayas and 8 Chinmaya Colleges that ensure education with a difference. All of these institutions operate as per the remarkably formed Chinmaya Vision Program, which includes a comprehensive academic structure. The idea behind this education program is to let the children face true vision of life and to further prepare them to face every challenge with a positive and dynamic outlook. It includes enhancing every side of their personalities, be it physical, mental, intellectual or spiritual. THE ART OF VEDIC MIND TRAINING

Robust learning of students can take place only if equal focus is given to both theoretical knowledge and practical wisdom, perhaps more of the latter, as was the case in Vedic times.

We integrate the Vedic Wisdom with the CBSE Curriculum by creating a combination of academics and co-curricular activities, such as Vedic literature Studies, Music, Art, Yoga, Community service, Culinary art, etc.

Vedic Yagyas

Our mornings start with purifying the environment and making it rich and full with energy to make the students ready to internalize the knowledge. These were part of the daily routine of people in ancient India. It had numerous benefits.

Ayurvedic Wisdom

Ayurveda is one of the oldest sciences and systems of medicine available to mankind. It lays emphasis on good health and prevention and treatment of illnesses through lifestyle practices (such as massage, meditation, yoga, and food) and the knowledge of natural plants and herbs as remedies.

Yoga and Meditation

The hostels are modern-day 'ashrams' of the Vedic times and help shape a holistic personality of the scholar. Independence and self-reliance are tempered by compassion, empathy and generosity for all sentient beings.
